More Military Material For Congo Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is expected to announce shortly that it will supply more military equipment for the United Nations Congo operation.

The announcement may be made within a week and the most urgently needed material will be down immediately to the Congo, authoritative informants said today.

The most important items on the U.N. shopping lists are 10 fighter planes. They are needed to give air protection to U.N. ground troops and to fend off hit-and-run attacks of the Katanga air force, estimated to consist of about 20 airplanes of various types and vintage.

The list of requested material—a detailed document drafted by the Indian commanders of the U.N. air force—was given to Lt. Gen. Louis W. Truman, head of a U.S. fact-finding mission which returned from the Congo this week.

Truman, informants said, approved the U.N. list after on-the-spot verification of the requirements and he submitted it Friday evening to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The final decision rests with President Kennedy, officials said, and added that knowing Kennedy's concern about the deteriorating Congo situation they felt sure the United Nations will get what it asks for.

The United Nations also wants a prefabricated steel bridge, air transport planes and 24 ton trucks.

High U.S. sources indicated that the United States made no commitment to supply the fighter planes.

Some officials said that while the United States will certainly provide transport planes and trucks for troop transportation, the decision on the fighters depends on how many planes other nations turn over to the U.N. force.

In other words, the United States would fill in the gap if it is found that the United Nations does not have enough fighters to match Katanga's air force.

As both India and Ethiopia are withdrawing their planes from the Congo, the United Nations can presently count on only three Swedish jet fighters. U.S. officials noted, however, that Iran has pledged to send four jet fighters. Others are expected from Italy and the Philippines, and an additional four fighters from Sweden.

COCKTAILS, ANYONE—A whole herd of trumpeting pink elephants might descend upon you if you drank a Martini from one of these "cocktail glasses." But they are actually only television picture tubes awaiting further processing at the RCA color tube facility in Marion, Ind.

A New Year Does Bring a Fresh Start, Opportunity Does Knock at Every Door

By MARY ANITA LASETER

Star Feature Writer

A new year is almost here. And with its approach every columnist in the country usually goes to a filing cabinet and withdraws comments intelligent people have said through the years about newness of life and the opportunities which lie ahead.

That is because a new year means a fresh start, and opportunity does knock. It's just up to answer.

One of the oldest bits of wisdom we found was by Zoroaster, when 3,000 years ago he told the Persian king, Cyrus the Great:

"Youth is not a time of life; it is a state of mind. Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years; people grow old by deserting their ideals. Years wrinkle the skin, but the giving up of enthusiasm, the soul. Worry, doubt, self-distrust, fear, and despair . . . these are the long years that bow the head and turn the growing spirit back to dust."

In the book of Philipians, Revised Standard Version, are the familiar words, " . . . forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, I press on toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus."

James J. Metcalfe once wrote, "Yes, wisdom comes with age, but that does not mean it cannot be present in youth. Sometimes we are inclined to ignore or belittle the efforts of younger persons simply because of their tender years. Yet some of our greatest achievements have come from the young."

In telling the Christmas story Bruce Barton explained that the people of Christ's day probably thought of him as "just another boy." But he added that children are those with "lives that are to overthrow and rebuild all that we have built. Nothing is so powerful or so perfect that it cannot be transformed utterly by the miracle of another girl. Or another boy."

Longfellow was a smart fellow and was bound to have been an optimist, else how could he have penned words like "Life is real, life is earnest, and the grave is not the goal; dust thou art, to dust thou returnest, was not spoken of the soul."

When Douglas MacArthur made his famous speech on the occasion of his 75th birthday, he concluded with what was probably a quotation but is now usually regarded as his own phrase, "You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubt, as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fear; as young as your hope, as old as your despair."

With present-day world conditions, how important it is that we adopt the name of the finest town in Southwest Arkansas as our motto!

Police Puzzled Over Protest

CHICAGO (AP)—City police professed puzzlement today about the Soviet protest over the brief arrest of a Russian in Chicago.

Police Supt. O. W. Wilson described the incident which took place at 3 a.m. Dec. 14 as routine. Patrolman Anton H. Majchen—who locked up Vladimir I. Karatsuba, 32, on a charge of public drunkenness—was more explicit: "He fell down three times while I was questioning him."

The policeman said he noted the well-dressed Russian staggering along a downtown Chicago sidewalk and feared he might be robbed.

When the Russian refused to identify himself or to allow police to escort him to his downtown hotel, he was arrested for his own safekeeping, police said.

Later that morning, Karatsuba appeared in Police Court and the charge was dismissed.

Karatsuba is an employee of Amtorg, the Soviet trade agency, and as such has no diplomatic immunity to arrest.

The U.S. State Department disclosed the Soviet Union complained about the arrest in a note received Dec. 25.

New Budget Director Takes Oath

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy started off his review of welfare department financing and programs today by swearing in his new budget director, Kermit Gordon.

The brief ceremony on the open patio of Kennedy's borrowed oceanfront villa was witnessed by presidential advisers and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare officials Kennedy has called here to go over items for 1963 congressional action.

Gordon, who has been one of three members of Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisers, was given the oath by Mayor Claude Reese of Palm Beach.

Gordon replaces David E. Bell as director of the Budget Bureau, Bell having moved into the top position in the Agency for International Development.

Gordon will be a key official in the talks as Kennedy takes a look today at the Welfare Department proposals—some of the most controversial items tagged for congressional action in 1963.

Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze arrived Thursday to prepare for the sessions.

No End to Newspaper Strike Yet

NEW YORK (AP)—Efforts to settle the New York newspaper strike broke down discouragingly today and a federal mediator said negotiations may be suspended until after New Year's Day.

There was no sign of any budging on either side in the strike that has closed the city's nine major daily newspapers.

Stephen J. Schlossberg, of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service said he might call the parties together again over the weekend, but possibly not until after the holidays.

"I'm pretty discouraged," he said.

"I must say that it is most frustrating to sit when no attempt to negotiate is being made and both parties remain in a frozen position," he said after a brief session with both sides.

As for further meetings, he was not definite. "Maybe tomorrow, maybe over the weekend or past the holidays," he said.

His remarks suggested a meeting seemed useless, without some change in the atmosphere.

No Data on $1000 a Plate Dinner

DALLAS (AP)—The man in charge of the controversial Democratic dinner marking the second anniversary of President Kennedy's inaugural said today that he has no information that the dinner will cost $1,000 a plate.

"No definite price has ever been announced," said the chairman of the affair, Bedford S. Wynne of Dallas.

"I don't know where all this is coming from. It has been rumored that $1,000 would be the suggested admission price for the dinner."

"But the Democratic National Committee will handle the matter and I will follow its recommendation."

Kennedy To Meet With The Survivors

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Survivors of a Cuban volunteer brigade which stormed Fidel Castro's stronghold in 1961 will face President Kennedy in the Orange Bowl today.

It was Kennedy who assumed responsibility for insufficient U.S. air support for the Bay of Pigs assault. And it was the Kennedy administration which worked with the troopers' families to free 1,113 invasion veterans from Cuban prisons and airlift them to Miami for pre-Christmas reunions.

Today Kennedy planned to review the men of Brigade 2506 and receive the gift of their battle-stained colors as guest of the still-steadiest anti-Castro military unit.

The President and Mrs. Kennedy, vacationing at Palm Beach, were scheduled to arrive by helicopter at Miami's police station at midmorning and go by car a few blocks to the football stadium. Kennedy speaks briefly and his wife was expected to speak—in Spanish—to members of the brigade and their families which included more than 900 persons permitted by Castro to follow the prisoners to Florida by ship.

ABC planned to televise the ceremonies live and NBC scheduled a telecast at noon.

Thousands of Americans also were expected in the stadium, which will seat more than 70,000 persons.

The Kennedys were invited to meet the liberated veterans by Manuel Artime and other brigade leaders, who called on the President Thursday at the holiday White House in Palm Beach.

Artime said Kennedy told his visitors that some day he hopes to visit a free Cuba.

The callers told newsmen they met with Kennedy "to express our appreciation for his personal efforts which led to our lives being respected and which eventually led to the salvation and freedom of the brigade."

As the liberated prisoners and their relatives, Miami area exiles, residents, rejoiced in the arrival of 920 more kin from Cuba, a Swiss diplomat in Havana said Castro's offer to permit more relatives to leave was canceled.

Even so, 500 or more persons were reported to have crowded around the Swiss Embassy in hopes of getting clearance to come to the United States. Switzerland handles U.S. affairs in Cuba since a 1960 break in diplomatic relations between the United States and the regime of Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro.

It was learned that discreet conversations were taking place between the Castro government and Swiss officials, who are seeking the release of 22 U.S. citizens serving up to 30-year sentences in Cuban jails on charges not connected with the invasion.

These range from counterrevolutionary activity to common crimes.

Donovan Did All Talking, Not Robert

WASHINGTON (AP)—Attorney James B. Donovan says that he alone, and not Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, was responsible for the operation that brought 1,113 Cuban invasion prisoners to the United States.

In a telephone interview Thursday with the Washington Star, Donovan implied that he could have finished the job himself without help from Kennedy at all if it had not been for the Cuban crisis in October.

Donovan, a New York lawyer and unsuccessful Democratic candidate for the Senate in the Nov. 6 election in New York is counsel for the Cuban Families Committee which negotiated the prisoner exchange for $53 million worth of drugs, food and equipment.

Contacted at a cottage at Lake Placid, N.Y., where he is resting after long negotiations with Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, Donovan told the Star that he has "enormous respect for the attorney general, but it is absolutely and unqualifiedly so that the policy and negotiations were entrusted to me."

Government sources had reported previously that Kennedy had directed a team of government officials who helped manage the massive operation.

Hope Star Increases Rural Subscription Price to $8.50 Year

The federal government has posted for 1963 an increase in the second-class mail rates affecting newspapers — therefore, effective Tuesday, Jan. 1, 1963, Hope Star is increasing the local rural subscription rate (Hempstead and adjoining counties) from present $6.50 to $8.50 a year.

Here is the full schedule of rates, effective Jan. 1:

	Old Rate	New Rate
One month	$ .85	$ 1.10
Three months	1.85	2.40
Six months	3.50	4.50
Year	6.50	8.50

From the earliest times of our Republic the government has carried the free-in-county second-class mail without charge — that is, all Hempstead county addressees except those on the four Hope routes. Agitators have raised the cry that this meant "subsidizing the newspapers." You listen to that kind of propaganda at your own risk — for it's not true.

The Star — and most newspapers — pass the government postal aid on to you in the form of greatly reduced rural subscription rates . . . until now, $6.50 a year, compared to $15.60 a year in Hope and neighboring towns. Now that government aid to the rural subscriber has been reduced we have no option but to pass on to you the increased burden — just as in the past we have given you the benefit of government aid.

Burglary Is Charged to 3 Youths

CHICAGO (AP)—Police investigating a complaint that firemen looted an apartment in a building where they fought a blaze early Christmas Day have charged three youths with burglarizing the building.

They are Thomas Zels, 18; Robert Glass, 20, and Jack Little, 19, all of Chicago.

John H. Naishbitt, 33, who charged that firemen helped themselves to liquor, cigarettes and Christmas gifts in his and another apartment while extinguishing the fire, refused to sign complaints against the three Thursday.

"Many questions remained unanswered, such as what happened to the rest of the merchandise," said Naishbitt, public information officer of the National Safety Council.

Police said Glass admitted taking cigarettes from an apartment in the burning building.

Naishbitt's accusations of pilfering by firemen were in a telegram he addressed to Mayor Richard J. Daley the day after the fire. They touched off a civic furor and a full-dress investigation by the mayor's office and the fire department.

The contention that Lady Hope is legally someone else's daughter apparently was made to deny her any share of her father's estate when he dies. Maugham revealed at the same time that last April he adopted Alan Frank Searle, his secretary for 32 years as his son Searle is 50.

ABC Is Being Reorganized

NEW YORK (AP)—The news department of the American Broadcasting Co. is being reorganized under James C. Hagerty, vice president in charges of news and special events, the network announced Thursday.

ABC said Hagerty, who was President Dwight D. Eisenhower's press secretary, will no longer deal personally with details of day to day operation but will continue in charge of over-all supervision and policy decisions.

Thomas Velotta, ABC vice president for administration, will be responsible for the administrative functions of the news department, while Robert Lang, vice president for operations, will handle operational matters. Changes are effective Jan. 14.

Hagerty said the total effect of the reorganization will be to consolidate the department, designate areas of responsibility, and facilitate communications between top management and ABC news.

Union counsel, in asking Douglas for a stay, said the case involved important questions of interpretation of the Railway Labor Act.

The questions, counsel said, included the right of railroads "to insist on uncontrolled discretion" in areas of the employer-employee relations long subject to collective bargaining.

Counsel also complained that the Circuit Court had based its opinion on disputed facts that did not appear in the railroad's complaint.

The proposed work rules changes could eliminate the jobs of 13,000 locomotive firemen within a year and eventually wipe out an estimated 45,000 to 80,000 jobs in the industry.

San Diego, Calif. (AP)—There still is no trace today of a Navy seaplane missing since Wednesday night. Thirteen men were aboard.

The plane, a Martin Marlin, was attached to Patrol Squadron 42, which lost a plane in the Gulf of Alaska Sept. 24. Ten perished in that crash.

Last word from the seaplane was a position report from 350 miles southwest of San Diego. It was returning to North Island Naval Air Station from a routine patrol.

JFK; Director Discuss The New Budget

By FRANK CORMIER

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—President Kennedy has sent his new budget director back to Washington to put the finishing touches on the bulky document after three days of policy talks at the holiday White House.

Kermit Gordon, sworn in Friday as chief overseer of the federal purse strings, flew back to Washington after dusk following a 90 minute conference with Kennedy.

Before departure, Gordon said some changes might yet be made in the budget for the 1964 fiscal year that begins next July 1.

It was apparent, however, that most of the key question marks were disposed of in meetings this week on tax cut plans, military spending, and legislative proposals involving aid to education and medical care for aged through Social Security.

The Kennedy-Gordon session Friday night was focused on the administration's 1963 legislative program and its effect on the forthcoming budget. Sitting in on the talks were Elmer Staats, deputy budget director, and Lawrence F. O'Brien, a key presidential adviser on congressional relations.

With this meeting, Kennedy cleared the decks of all announced appointments until after the New Year's holiday. However, the chief executive had a date today in Miami with survivors of the disastrous Cuban invasion of April 1961. Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, were to fly to Miami to watch the Cubans pass in review in that city's Orange Bowl stadium.

Some of the final questions about the record $99 billion budget due in mid-January were resolved at a session at which Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze and Kennedy reviewed reviewed new education and medical care legislation they hope will "be more palatable" to opponents.

This was the way legislation was characterized by Celebrezze following the 2½-hour session.

Celebrezze said that basically the programs will hew to the same "underlying philosophy" of administration bills that failed to gain passage in the last Congress.

However, he indicated that some significant concessions would be made to the opposition. Kennedy asked for some changes in the legislation proposed to him, but Celebrezze indicated these were not substantial.

Khrushchev Letter Hit by Germans

BONN (AP)—West Germany denounced as grotesque and misleading today a letter from Premier Khrushchev accusing Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of stirring up trouble in Berlin and leading the world on the road to war.

Adenauer's Socialist opposition joined the government in denouncing the Soviet leader's letter. Socialist Mayor Willy Brandt of West Berlin said the letter indicated the Kremlin was misinformed on important aspects of Berlin.

Adenauer's press chief Karl Guenther Von Hase singled out Khrushchev's charge that West Germany was preparing the nation for a civil war with East Germany.

"This accusation is not only most grotesque ever made but shows also a great misconception of the German problem by the Kremlin," Von Hase told a news conference.

He said the West German government regrets what he called "the disgraceful, untrue and insulting language" of the letter which Khrushchev sent to Adenauer Monday.

Von Hase said it had not been decided as yet whether Adenauer will send a reply.

The proposed work rules changes could eliminate the jobs of 13,000 locomotive firemen within a year and eventually wipe out an estimated 45,000 to 80,000 jobs in the industry.

Capital Is Not Much to Look at

WASHINGTON (AP)—To many she's the jewel on the Potomac. But to a committee of architects—who are supposed to know about such things—Washington, D.C., is a city on the wane.

"They say the nation's capital, to which hundreds of thousands of tourists throng each year, just is not much to look at."

The gloomy report on Washington was compiled by a committee of the American Institute of Architects. It's published—136 pages of it—in the institute's January Journal.

In the century and a half since Pierre L'Enfant laid out his basic, classical design for the city, it has lost its luster and gone esthetically downhill, says the committee. The group is headed by Paul Thiry, chief architect of the Seattle World's Fair.

Reasons for the reported decline of the city are sudden changes in population, transportation methods and ways of living.

The architects depicted Washington as "a confusion of planning boards and agencies, each concerned with but one fragment of the total picture. Clearly, a centralized planning authority is needed."

Weather

Total 1962 rainfall through November, 47.20; during the same period last year, 51.19 inches.

Cloudy with rain ending today. Decreasing cloudiness and cooler tonight. Warmer today.

ALC Slates New Series of Meetings

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Legislative Council has scheduled a whirlwind round of committee meetings for next Thursday and Friday to finalize its recommendations to the 1963 legislature, which convenes Jan. 14.

The full council meets at 1 p.m. Friday to hear reports of the various committees. Still to be decided upon are such important subjects as funds for the University of Arkansas Medical Center and voter registration.

Sen. Robert Harvey of Swifton, chairman of a committee to study the needs of the Medical Center, has called a meeting of his committee for 7 p.m. Thursday. Harvey, Sen. Tom Allen of Brinkley and Rep. Joel Ledbetter of Pulaski County will draw up a report on center finances and decide what they will recommend to the council and ultimately to the legislature.

The Roads and Highways Committee of the council will meet at 3:30 p.m. Thursday to finish its study on rural road needs. There has been a recommendation that the Highway Department take over the council roads along with the road funds.

At 9:30 a.m. Friday, the Committee on Voter Registration will decide what to recommend in the event the poll tax is abolished.

At 10 a.m. Friday, the Revenue and Taxation Committee will take up a half dozen proposals, including qualifying employees of the Weights and Measures Division on the same basis as state policemen so they can have similar retirement benefits.

Another subject for that committee to consider is the loss of state revenue if deductions are allowed for money paid to the federal government as income tax. The committee also will recommend one way or the other on a withholding plan for the state income tax.

Arkansas landowners are planting trees at the rate of about 70,000 acres a year.

Since the turn of the century, Arkansas' sawmills have been producing more than one billion board feet of lumber each year.

Girl Wants To End War With Mother

GIRL WANTS TO END WAR WITH MOTHER
HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE
 Dear Helen: My mother and I are on the best of terms now that boys have entered the picture. Everything is different. I don't think it's such a terrible thing to have a boy friend. I'd think I'd committed a capital crime the way Mother tries on.

She almost faints if I ask to go to a boy's car or to bowl or to a weekend. We fight constantly about my dating.

Every time I bring a boy friend home she yells, "Don't let him see here!" She is so critical of everything I do and say that I'm losing all belief in myself.

The only reason I can think of for her acting this way is my mother. He got into a lot of trouble not long ago so maybe she thinks all boys are like him. But they are not I try to be understanding and mature but it just doesn't help. Now, a boy friend wants to take me to a New Year's Eve dance and my mother says, "No!" What can I do? —Utterly confused

Dear Utterly: The simplest explanation for your mother's change in attitude is Freudian: sentiment because you're entering womanhood; she's fading, you're blossoming. Were she to consult a psychiatrist I'm sure she'd come up with this answer. She needs a lot of loving and help such as only a daughter can give. Turn her interest inward by encouraging her to look and be her best self. Start the New Year by taking her to a beauty parlor for a permanent and hair-styling, give her a home permanent and hair-do yourself. Study the fashion magazines with her. Encourage her to select stylish clothes even if you have to go without them. Help her to find a new self capable of leading a full life of her own.

Once she achieves this, problems will assume their normal proportions. Include her in your plans. Wangle her an invitation to the New Year's Eve party. Perhaps she could be included among the napkins at the dance to which you've been invited. Give her something to look forward to change her thoughts!

Dear Helen: Please print this letter because it is for the public. I am a majorette in a high school band with a gripe. People watch us parade with a ho-hum expression on their faces. Many walk a few minutes then drift off. I speak from experience, having marched in countless parades. I have talked to the members of school bands and other paraders. They feel as I do. Perhaps if the public knew all the effort we put into making a parade, they would applaud us more. We practice marching every day at school. I memorize my music. For the most part we just don't feel like parading. When we do, it is for the pleasure of the public. We are in living hell on hot days with the sweat trickling down our backs, underneath our thick uniforms. We would sure appreciate it if those attending parades gave some evidence of really enjoying our performance. —Member of a High School Band

Dear Member: Not until you kids have learned to march with the precision of the Rockettes will you be able to hold the undivided attention of your public. Aim for the stars. Forget the crowd, concentrate upon giving a professional performance and the cheers will follow.

Send your problem to Helen Worden Erskine. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope and address her care of this newspaper. Helpful leaflets available. Write for "Being a Good Club Member."

British Are Divided on Duke's Role

PARIS (AP) — The Duke of Windsor said today captured German diplomatic documents gave a generally false impression suggesting he favored a British alliance with Nazi Germany while he was king.

The captured documents released Thursday quoted the Duke when he reigned as King Edward VIII — as saying he was ready to meet Hitler.

The Duke said the documents written by a German envoy identified as the Duke of Coburg — were "slanted in order to curry favor with Hitler."

British newspapers divided in their reaction to a revival of the charge that the Duke wanted to make a personal deal with Hitler.

The Daily Express, published by Windsor's old friend Lord Beaverbrook, again defended the former King Edward VIII.

The Laborite Daily Mirror scathingly derided the duke. The liberal Guardian said the new report only showed how stupid the Nazis were.

The perennial argument was revived by publication by the British, American and French governments of captured Nazi documents kept secret since World War II.

The documents showed that a mysterious German envoy — identified by other sources as the German duke of Coburg — reported to Hitler after an interview with Edward VIII.

"A Germany-Britain alliance is for him an urgent necessity and a guiding principle for British foreign policy."

"To my question whether a discussion between Baldwin (Stanley Baldwin, then British prime minister) and Hitler would be desirable for future German-British relations, he replied in the following words:

"Who is king here? Baldwin or I? I myself wish to talk to Hitler and will do so here or in Germany. Tell him that, please."

The duke also reported to the fuhrer that the king had "spoken well" of Rudolf Hess, the Nazi leader who later parachuted into Scotland during World War II.

With the publication, old antagonists reformed ranks and debated the dusty questions — did Britain lose a potentially great king when Edward abdicated in 1936 for the love of an American divorcee?

Or would he have been a puppet of Hitler?

The duke at his home in Paris had no immediate comment on the new documents. His secretary said he was studying the texts.

But in the past, when questions about him were raised by published Nazi documents, the duke has denied there was anything improper in his connections

Thirteen Arkansas counties are divided into two districts, each with its own courthouse.

Celebrations Would Keep Roads Clear

By JUNIUS GRIFFIN
 NEW YORK (AP) — A number of establishments catering to New Year's Eve celebrants are emphasizing programs to keep their patrons off the highways.

Setting the pace are big clubs and hotels in Los Angeles. A newspaper cafe columnist says police warning on drunken driving, police roadblocks and a crackdown on traffic violations have made it harder to lure people of the big suburban areas for an evening of celebrating in the city.

Several Los Angeles hotels are offering a free room with their package deals for the evening at prices up to $67.

One hotel's plan includes a party at the Coconut Grove, a night's lodging and a bus ride the next morning to the Rose Parade in Pasadena.

A hotel in Beverly Hills, Calif., has changed its package deal to exclude drinks, making the price cheaper, and eliminating the obligation of celebrators to drink up their money's worth before heading home.

Howard Johnson's motor lodge chain in Columbus, Ohio, has a $17-per-couple deal with overnight accommodations for two, dancing, swimming, buffet supper and breakfast on New Year's Day. Other clubs in the city have cover charges from $3 to $3.50.

Millions of people will not celebrate the new year in clubs and hotels.

Churches throughout the nation will open their doors for services where prayers will be offered for world peace.

Many families will spend New Year's Eve at their hearthside. Others will celebrate with friends in private homes.

In Cherryville, N.C., the colorful 151-year-old custom of heralding the new year begins at midnight.

Two separate groups will call at every home in the town of 4,000. At each, a crier sings out a chant of several verses beginning: "Good morning to you, sir. We wish you a Happy New Year. Good health, long life. . ."

Then some 30 men, each armed with old muskets, will fire a volley. The custom was brought to Gaston County, N.C., by early German settlers.

At Colorado Springs, Colo., the Adaman club will make its annual climb to the top of Pike's Peak to shoot fireworks at midnight December 31. This custom was started three decades ago.

One of the world's most famous celebrations will be in New York City's Times Square, where thousands jam streets and sidewalks to yell, cheer and have their toes and ribs bruised.

Arkansas City Slipping Back Into History

By J. C. TILLMAN
 ARKANSAS CITY, Ark. (AP) — Page by page, this southeastern Arkansas community is slipping itself back into history—back into the busy, bustling Mississippi River port it was half a century ago.

The old sternwheelers that once tied up at its wharves are gone forever. Stacks of timber and bales of cotton will never line wharves that aren't there any more.

But if plans are carried out, the remainder of the town will be just as it was in the 1875-1925 period.

The citizens' do-it-yourself rejuvenation of the town into a reproduction of its own heyday is expedited to attract a commodity perhaps as valuable as the cotton and timber upon which it once thrived—the tourist.

At the turn of the century, Arkansas City was a growing Mississippi River port with a population of 10,000.

The optimism existed from 1873, when the little port was founded, until over a quarter of the 20th century was gone.

In 1927, the Mississippi sent its waters roaring into the community to depths of 18 feet.

There was death and there was destruction. But there was hope, even as the waters receded.

Hope began to end when the fickle Mississippi kept on receding, backing farther and farther away to settle in a channel she had cut three miles away.

Arkansas City was left high, if not dry.

Since that year, virtually nothing new has come to the town—no railroads, no highways, no industry and few residents.

The appearance of the town has changed little in the past years. And in this lies the renewed hope of those who were born in the community and do not want to see it added to the list of the dying.

The plan is simply to restore, year by year, each historic building, eventually turning the town into a facsimile of the port they remember.

Arkansas ranks near the top in the variety and quantity of game birds.

Mrs. James McCuen Augur

Miss Marilyn Clyde Hussman became the bride of James McCuen Augur at 11:30 Saturday morning, December 29, in the St. Louis Catholic Church. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Edward Hussman of Camden. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Augur of Milwaukee, Wis.

Garlands of spruce interwoven with yellow chrysanthemums decorated the communion rail. Two large baskets of yellow chrysanthemums completed the nuptial setting where Father Garland Street officiated Mrs. Thad McDonald was organist.

Pews were marked by the yellow flowers while white chrysanthemum bouquets designated the family seating area.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an ivory silk princess gown with bell skirt and chapel train. The scalloped-edged, re-embroidered Alencon lace which formed the deep yoke and the brief sleeves was repeated in appliques on the skirt and train.

Her elbow-length veil of illusion lace and chiffon with matching lace and accessories. Mrs. Augur wore a dress of floral brocade and wore beige accessories. Both wore white rose corsages.

Mrs. Richard S. Arnold of Washington, D. C. was her sister's honor attendant. Bridesmaids were Miss Betty Becker and Miss Virginia Savers. The three attendants wore identical turquoise satin dresses of classic design. The scooped neck and brief sleeves of the bodice were accented by a full skirt which swept into a chapel train. Their hats were matching turquoise satin rose petals and they carried sheaths of yellow roses.

Mr. Augur chose Ralph Graber of Green Bay, Wisconsin, to serve as best man. Ushers were Dan Biber of Milwaukee, Richard S. Arnold of Washington, D. C., W. E. Hussman, Jr. and Frank Augur, Jr.

The mothers of the couple were escorted by their sons who served as ushers. Mrs. Hussman was wearing a sheath dress of blue lance and chiffon with matching lace and accessories. Mrs. Augur wore a dress of floral brocade and wore beige accessories. Both wore white rose corsages.

Following the ceremony, a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Hussman, 1890 Mari-gale Lane. The bride's table was decorated with a centerpiece of white poinsettia. Red poinsettia filled the planter box.

Serving in the reception party were Mrs. R. Paul May, Miss Mao Reynolds, Miss Hope Rother, Miss Margaret Daniel, Miss Nancy Clippert, and Miss Betsy Jacoway of Little Rock. Mrs. Walter Jennings was in charge of the bride's book.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Mexico, Mrs. Augur wore a suit of turquoise wool with beige accessories and a corsage of roses.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Augur will be at home at 4400

Cedar Springs, Dallas, Texas. Out of town guests for the wedding included: Mrs. C. E. Palmer, grandmother of the bride; Mrs. Alden Mooney, aunt of the bride of Hot Springs; Mr. and Mrs. David Mooney of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. Osro Cobb and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jennings of Little Rock; Miss Sally Smart of Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Miss Mary Clare Dowell of St. Louis; Mrs. Edna Scheid, aunt of the groom, to Cincinnati; Mr. R. L. Arnold, Mr. Morris Arnold, Mr. Wendell Blake, Mr. Laurence Bettis, Mrs. Wayne Windel, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clark, Mr. and Mrs. Luther McClure, Mrs. P. D. Vincent, great aunt of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Smith, Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Wilbanks, and Mrs. Ambolyn Hervey, all of Texarkana; Mrs. Justin J. Doerr of St. Louis, Missouri, aunt of the bride; and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Windle of El Paso, Texas.

MAN ON THE SKEWBALD MARE
 By NELSON C. NYE
 XIX

An unreasonable anger rushed tumultuously through Rafe. All he had undergone feeding this fury as he pictured Bill lallygagging with the girls, comfortable and safe as a frolic of church mice.

Filled with it he growled: "Get 'em on up here an' hurry it up!"

The shod hoofs, going away, wasted no time in stealth. Rafe dropped, utterly spent, yet too feverishly filled with the whirl of his emotions to take any rest from it. He was up, again pacing, when in the enfolding grip of deep quiet hoofs pocked the night somewhere off to the left.

One of the approaching animals nickered, and he came around, staring, on stiffening hips, certain even in the thick of this black, there were more than two horses. He listened, canted forward, mouth open, heart thudding.

"It's only us," Bunny said, so calm he could have shouted. "Bill found your mare, and most of the grub that went off with your pack horse. Why don't you build that fire up a little?"

Why didn't he go stick his head in it!

Rafe said, furious, "We're heading for town—"

"Town!" Brownwater bleated like a scalded pig. "Sun cooked your brains, boy?"

And Luce cried bitterly: "Alpha Chilton—"

when she nuzzled him. He reached for the horn, then stepped back. "You'll ride with me," he grumbled at Bunny.

"Ride with yourself," Bunny said. "I'm comfortable."

Luce said, "Somebody has to be up there with Pa."

Brownwater nodded: "He's about done in."

Bunny, peering about, wanted to know what Rafe had done with her gelding.

"He went lame," Rafe said, past with his father, fell in behind Bill. Then Rafe turned Bathsheba into their tracks, so hungry he was dizzy, so dry in his throat he couldn't have said anything that would have half done him justice even could he have shoved it through the things that were choking him. He had all he could do to keep himself in the saddle.

An indefinable while later Brownwater spoke out of the black at his elbow. "Luce fingered maybe you might want something in your belly."

It wasn't quite a question, not even noticeably apologetic. It was, however, an overture and, after staring hard at the blobs of their faces, Rafe, still silent, pushed out a hand.

The girl put a leathery something into it. "I . . . I'm sorry about what I said," she mentioned, leaning out from her perch behind Bill to slip a weighted strap over his wrist.

The strap was attached to a near-empty water bag. After he'd squeezed the last drop out of it, Rafe peered at the chunk of dried meat she'd put into his fist. He got it all down and perked up enough to take a harder look at the things on his mind, the more urgent ones at any rate.

The two girls exchanged looks. Brownwater, scowling, said, "Ahr—" but set off.

Luce, behind with the knees sticking out of her hiked-up skirt, muttered, "Who does he think he is—Julius Caesar?"

Rafe waited with his mouth hard shut until Bunny, wheeling past with his father, fell in behind Bill. Then Rafe turned Bathsheba into their tracks, so hungry he was dizzy, so dry in his throat he couldn't have said anything that would have half done him justice even could he have shoved it through the things that were choking him. He had all he could do to keep himself in the saddle.

Likely, as Luce had pointed out, town was the first place Spangler would head for. Whether he got Luce, but he couldn't help that. It was the only chance he could see to put a crack in their plans, and he wasn't naive enough to underestimate his peril.

But the only alternative was to let these men get away with it, and he sure couldn't see himself doing that. He wondered what price Jack Dahl had for his part. It must have been a pretty because at least the start of this deal had been set up with his connivance.

When first light finally came they weren't — according to Bunny — more than a mile and a half from town.

Chilton, this early wouldn't be at his bank, yet this was where Rafe was determined to see him. He pushed it around for a while in his head.

They could see the town's roofs across the tops of the trees which Rafe had fled when Spangler's gunhand told after him.

He thought some more, scowling, then abruptly called: "Bill! You got any lawyers around here?"

"Only lawyer closer than Tucson," Bunny said, "is Alph Chilton."

Rafe muttered under his breath.

"If it's legal advice you're in need of," said Brownwater, "you could ride to Camp Grant an' put it up to the military. . ."

"I want to get this done if I can before Spangler. . ."

"Daddy's a notary," Bunny Pike said, watching him.

where the limbs and leaves hid them, hauled Bunny off the old man's horse, helped Bender down; then, ignoring her spluttering, thrust the reins in her hands. "Go fetch your pa. We'll wait right here."

Choking back whatever she'd been going to say, she got into the saddle and rode off through he brush. Some things about her you simply had to admire.

The others got down. Luce, female fashion, putting store on appearance, tried to cuff some of the dust and wrinkles from her clothes. "Whatever you two have up your sleeves, I hope. . ."

Rafe said, cutting in, "All we got to do is cinch our hulls on this critter," and tossed Brownwater the chunk of rock he'd picked up. The fat puncher took one look and whistled. It was hard to keep still after that but he done it.

Luce, all agog, kept rearing him with her stares and, when this failed to unlock his lips, stuck her nose in the air and gave him her back.

Rafe watched the town through their lattice of branches.

He'd about given Bunny up and, in a lather of impatience, was getting ready to move when she came through the brush without her pa, and afoot.

"You don't need to swear," she said, eyeing Rafe's scowl. "Daddy's coming. In the buggy. He's gone around by the road."

Rafe helped his father into the skewbald's saddle, grabbed hold of her cheekstrap and set off, the rest following.

He could hear Luce back of him dinging at Bill, and the snapping of the brush and the hoofs of the horses coming through the leafy mold.

"We're making enough racket," Bunny said, "for a herd of elephants."

Things quieted down after that and Luce quit talking.

Rafe stood listening at the edge of the growth. All of them stopped when they saw him put a hand up, and the squeak and rattle of an approaching vehicle rumbled plainly off the planks bridging the gully at the edge of town.

Rafe got Bender off Bathsheba. "You an' Pa," he said to Bunny, "will ride in the buggy. Soon as you're aboard have Pike turn it round and head for the bank. Luce. . ."

"Don't you think," his father said a bit testily, "I'm old enough to be told what you're up to? Seems like I ought to have some say. . ."

"You'll have plenty to say when we get to it. Right now we've got to have a talk with that banker. We've got to get to him 'fore Spangler shows up."

Rafe turned to his sister. "Luce, you get on Bill's horse and go after Chilton. He's prob'ly still in bed—you know where he lives?"

Big-eyed she nodded.

"Get goin', then." He shoved her toward's Bill's horse.

"But what will I tell him?" "Tell him anything—tell him the Old Man's waitin' with the money to pay off that mortgage. I don't care what you tell him, long as you fetch him. An' don't lallygag around pickin' no posies!"

Brownwater said, eyeing Rafe uneasily, "I'm not sure I like this. Somebody could get bad hurt. . ."

"You got a better idea?" "What's the matter with me goin' after him?" Bill said, reaching a hand out to Luce.

"If Spangler shows, I'm goin' to need your gun."

They stared at each other. "You're leanin' on a mighty weak reed," the fat man said, but he dropped the hand. Luce climbed into the saddle. She put her horse through the trees.

Rafe stepped out and Pike pulled up. Bunny and Rafe helping Bender aboard, Pike wanting to know what this was all about.

"Drive 'em back to the bank and stay in the buggy—all of you—till Chilton shows up." Rafe told him shortly. "And if lead gets to flyin', keep your heads down, but get into that bank no matter what."

Urges Special Ceremonies

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — President Kennedy today urged all sections of the nation — North and South — to hold special ceremonies next year marking the 100th anniversary of the emancipation proclamation.

The President also called upon all citizens and public officials "to dedicate themselves to the completion of the task of assuring that every American, regardless of his race, religion, color or national origin, enjoys all the rights guaranteed by the Constitution and laws of the United States."

Kennedy, in a proclamation, noted that Abraham Lincoln signed the emancipation document on Jan. 1, 1863.

The President said Lincoln's act "marked the beginning of the end of the iniquitous institution of slavery in the United States" and "founded on justice and morality."

TIME RUNNING OUT!

New Year's Eve and four minutes 'til midnight. It is time to total your failures, to calculate your successes, and to make bonafide resolutions. Did this year bring a spiritual surplus for you? Do you have a clearer view of destiny? Do you know more of the meaning and purpose of life? Have you had time for God? If not, it will be a terrible day, when God has no time for you. As the New Year dawns, we know God is in front. He will be in all the tomorrows. Happy New Year!

So They May See == Psalm 19 == So They May Hear

THE HEAVENS DECLARE the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handy-work.

2. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge.

3. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard.

4. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun,

5. Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race.

6. His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof.

7. The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple.

THE STATUTES of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes.

9. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring for ever: the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.

10. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb.

11. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward.

12. Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults.

13. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression.

14. Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer.
